DINNER FRIDAY AND SATURDAY NIGHT

Built in 1892 by Llano builder and stonemason, John Goodman (1852-1935), this turn-of-the-century commercial row structure has housed a succession of dry goods merchants. It was purchased in 1919 by the Acme Dry Goods Company. The Acme Dry Goods was converted to a restaurant around 2001 and purchased by Maurie and Jim Beasley in 2004. Maurie Kay grew up on a farm, in a little bitty town called Fred, just a spit'n distance from Louisiana, where pick'n peas, shuck'n corn, and peel'n shrimp were all national pastimes. Maurie Kay learned how to cook from a slew of relatives that believed food was the main attraction. With Cajun aunts, Italian uncles, and Alabama cousins, a reunion was a time for catching up and sharing recipes.

From this melting pot of flavors, Maurie Kay developed her own style of cooking which continued to evolve when she migrated to the Texas Hill Country with San Antonio in her backyard and a German for a husband.

We pride ourselves in providing our customers with food made from the freshest ingredients. We may take a little longer to make that burger, hand bread that chicken fry or pan sear that crab cake but we think it's worth it.
